

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE:

Methods and devices for selecting a handover parameter in a cellular network, wherein a delay of a handover procedure is typically measured and the handover parameter is generally set based on the result of the measuring step. Thereby, the system capacity may be maximized dynamically, depending on the system load and the physical configuration. An optimization of parameter and capacity thus becomes possible.